

Jessica Hawks, Ph.D. is a clinical child and adolescent psychologist and the clinical director of ambulatory and intensive services at the Pediatric Mental Health Institute, Children's Hospital Colorado. She is also an assistant professor in the Department of Psychiatry, School of Medicine, at the University of Colorado. Dr. Hawks provides mental health services to children and families presenting with a wide spectrum of mental health concerns. She has clinical expertise in working with children with behavioral difficulties and/or irritability and their parents. Dr. Hawks leads clinical services and provides training and supervision to a variety of mental health trainees and professionals. Her research focuses on innovative clinical program development and dissemination efforts aimed at bringing a transdiagnostic approach to pediatric mental health assessment and treatment services. Dr. Hawks is routinely invited to interview for state and national media outlets, as well as provide community lectures, on pediatric mental health.